Mrs. Floyd Kennedy is Killed in Auto Collision; 3 Others are Hospitalized

Crash Occurs On Rt. 45 at Barnett Street Crossing

Mrs. Ethel Kennedy, wife of Floyd Kennedy, was killed yesterday in a two-car collision on Route 45 at the Barnett street crossing.

Mrs. Kennedy, 49 years old, lived at 211 West Park street, the residence of her mother, Mrs. John Ford.

State Policeman Roy A. Lane said that Mrs. Kennedy was killed, three were hospitalized and three others received treatment for injuries when automobiles driven by Mrs. Kennedy and Gallatin County Sheriff Millard Holloway collided at the crossing around 3:15 p. m.

He said that Mrs. Kennedy started across the highway and drove into the path of the approaching Gallatin county car, which was coming from the south.

Coroner Elmer M. Gibbons said it was believed that Mrs. Kennedy, who suffered severe neck and hip injuries, was killed instantly. She was pronounced dead on arrival at the Harrisburg hospital.

Hospitalized were the three and a half year old twin sons of Mrs. Peggy Ledbetter, Frankie and Sammie, and Sheriff Holloway's wife, Mina. All are in Harrisburg hospital. Sheriff Holloway, who suffered a gash in the head, Mrs. Ledbetter and a two-year-old daughter, Debra, were treated and released. Mrs. Ledbetter, a niece of Mrs. Kennedy, and her three children were all in the Ledbetter car.

Only one person, Deputy Sheriff James Fox who was riding with the Holloways, escaped injury.

Sheriff Holloway said his wife suffered a broken arm and a cut near the eye.

Coroner Gibbons said that Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy had been living in Chicago but came to Harrisburg in the spring to live with Mrs. Kennedy's mother, Mrs. John Ford, at 211 West Park street. He said he was told that the group in the Kennedy car had started to Gaskins City and was driving across Route 45 when the front end of the Holloway car struck the Kennedy machine broadside.

The Gallatin county group was returning from Anna, where a patient had been taken to the state hospital.

The body of Mrs. Kennedy was taken to the Turner funeral home, where it will lie in state. The funeral will be held there with the Rev. Carl Downey conducting the rites. Burial will be in Sunset Hill. Rees Turner, funeral director, said the definite time of the funeral had not been set but it will be either Wednesday or Thursday.

Besides her husband and mother she leaves a brother, William "Buster" Parks of Harrisburg, a sister, Mrs. Roscoe Anthony of Chicago.

A member of the family stated this morning Mrs. Kennedy had a purse containing considerable money, pictures and valuable papers with her at the time of the accident and it has not been found.

It will be deeply appreciated by the family if anyone finding the purse would return it to Mrs. John Ford residence, 211 West Park street.

About Town And Country

By TIMOTHEUS T.

TIMMO'S BACK after a week off and am back to the grind once more, and brought back a story about the business executive.

He couldn't sleep, so he went to his physician to get a prescription for sleeping pills only to discover he was allergic to sedatives.

"What about some of this twilight sleep I've heard about?" asked the business man.

"Oh, that's only for labor!" was the reply.

"Good heavens," the executive cried, "haven't you got anything for management?"

NOTICED A FEW changes about town after getting back on the job, although we didn't get away from these parts except for one day, when we took the new Wabash river bridge near New Haven over to Evansville and came back thru Henderson and Morganfield and over the Shawneetown bridge. Just wanted to see what it was like.

Changes I have noted is that Ammon and Blackman no longer have their garage and lawnmower sales service in the Cummins building but have moved into the part occupied by the tire recapping business down where Charlie Hine has his service station at Main and Raymond.

That leaves the entire first floor of the big Cummins building empty so that Wilson-Taylor can move in their Ford agency from Locust street.

Hillis Stokes has moved his automotive electrical service building a few blocks to a new location. It has been on the Ragon service station lot at 222 South Granger but has been moved to 428-A West Poplar street. The building moved is a metal Quonset structure.

I ALSO NOTICED that more of the oil-and-chips streets were completed during the week, and although the rains yesterday and the day before push us away from the subject of dust, let us give a vote of thanks for the great absence of dust because of this program.

In the past you could look into fields and lots and see weeds practically camouflaged by heavy dust in the dirt street areas. Now you can see the weeds but very little dust, as the oil has eliminated this.

Not all of the streets were treated this year due to lack of funds but the city plans to start right up with the program next season.

House Bows to Veto; Repasses Military Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House bowed today to President Eisenhower's veto of a $2,300,000,000 military construction bill and repassed it without the language to which the President objected.

The House acted by unanimous consent shortly after its Armed Services Committee approved the revised bill, 27-0. But the committee served notice that, as a result of the President's action Monday, it will go a lot slower in approving defense requests hereafter.

The House action sent the revised authorization bill to the Senate where its fate is clouded. The new bill embraces, unchanged, the scores of project authorizations covered in the original measure.

Chairman Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.) of the Senate Armed Services Committee indicated in advance that he doubts whether it will be necessary to re-pass the bill at this session of Congress.

Russell said the Defense Department may prove to have enough authority, and money, already on hand to keep its base-building and other construction work going until next year.

Mr. Eisenhower vetoed the original bill on grounds that some of its provisions were an unconstitutional invasion of executive powers by Congress. He specifically objected to provisions that would have given the House and Senate Armed Service Committees a veto over Defense Department plans for new Talos guided missile sites and for military housing projects.

Committee members denied that the provisions were a congressional invasion of executive authority. But they agreed to go along with the President so vital defense work will not be delayed.

Bert Fife Rites at Eldorado Wednesday

Funeral services for Bert Fife, 75, former Saline county resident who resided in East Alton and who died Sunday afternoon in the Wood-River Township hospital, will be Wednesday at 1 p. m. at the Eldorado funeral home. Rev. Howard Todd Taylor will officiate and burial will be in the Masonic cemetery at Raleigh.

The body will arrive in Eldorado at 4 p. m. today and lie in state at the funeral home.

Two Youths Sentenced

Two youths pleaded guilty to petit larceny charges yesterday when arraigned before County Judge Trafton Dennis and each was sentenced to 10-day county jail terms.

They were Harvey Fitzgerald and Cecil Headrick, charged with stealing gasoline from a tractor southeast of Carrier Mills.

William Joyner pleaded guilty to a charge of reckless driving and was fined $50 and costs.

President Asks Final Effort On School Bill

Knowland, Martin Advise Chances for Measure are 'Slim'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower called on Republican congressional leaders today to make a last-ditch effort to revive the big school construction bill which was voted down recently in the House.

Senate GOP Leader William F. Knowland and House Leader Joseph W. Martin Jr. both told the President they would make the attempt. But they said chances for success are "slim" in view of the drive to adjourn Congress late next week.

The President spent more than an hour going over the legislative situation with ranking Republicans of the House and Senate, exploring what could be done to speed up action on administration-favored legislation in the waning days of Congress.

Mr. Eisenhower, according to the leaders, was still hopeful that a measure to increase postal rates, the subject of hearings before the Senate Post Office Committee this week, would be acted on at this session. The House has approved the mail hikes.

For Needy States

On the school bill, Knowland said that the President wants legislation to help build more schools in needy states and areas "rather than a pork barrel bill spread out all over the country."

Knowland said Mr. Eisenhower wants the federal government to be in a supplementary position to provide assistance in building new schools in areas unable to finance construction independently.

The bill defeated by the House would authorize a federal expenditure of $1,600,000,000 for school construction over a four-year period. It was rejected in the House in a fight over segregation, but the administration hopes to revive it in the Senate and push it through Congress before it adjourns.

Before finally voting down the school aid bill, the House rejected an administration-backed proposal in which wealthy states would have to put up more money than poor states to receive federal aid. This left standing a provision by which all states would match federal funds on a 50-50 basis.

Bill to Extend Farm Conservation Program Goes to White House

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Monday unanimously passed and sent to the White House a bill to extend for another two years the agriculture conservation program under which farmers receive payments for conservation practices.

Political Career of Hodge Collapses With Resignation as State Auditor

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — The political career of Orville Enoch Hodge collapsed with stunning force Monday when he resigned as state auditor and withdrew as Republican candidate for re-election.

A reputed millionaire with dozens of business enterprises, Hodge had considered running for governor this year, but decided to seek re-election as auditor with an eye on the governor's mansion in 1960.

Hodge resigned as a series of investigations of irregularities in the auditor's office began here. The investigations centered on the cashing of "questionable" state warrants estimated at more than half a million dollars.

A friendly, gregarious person, Hodge was born in Anderson, Ind., in 1904. He will be 52 Oct. 1.

He is married to the former Margaret Coudy, Granite City. Their only son, Bill, is an Army enlisted man.

Hodge has lived at Granite City since he was 4 years old.

In his biography in the Illinois Blue Book, Hodge listed himself as a "real estate broker, insurer, realtor and builder." He owns two farms, in Clinton and Madison counties, and holds part ownership in a Texas produce ranch. He also owns an apartment hotel at Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Before his election as auditor in 1952, Hodge served three consecutive terms as a state representative from the old 47th District of Bond and Madison counties.

He has homes at Lake Springfield and Granite City, and also keeps hotel suites at Chicago and Springfield.

An inveterate joiner, Hodge listed in his Blue Book biography more than a dozen clubs and fraternal organizations in which he holds memberships.

He still holds a card for membership in the AFL Tie Workers Union from his student working days.

Promises Full Disclosure To Grand Jury

Stratton to Name Interim Successor, New Candidate

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — Resigned State Auditor Orville E. Hodge said today he will "make a full disclosure" of his office administration to a grand jury Monday and "will make restitution" for state money involved in the huge check scandal in his office.

Hodge made the statement when he emerged from a surprise hour and 10 minute conference with State's Atty. George P. Coutrakon. The statement, handed to reporters by Hodge's attorney, Arthur M. Fitzgerald, said:

"I have assured the state's attorney I will appear before the grand jury next Monday and make a full disclosure of all transactions during my administration as auditor. I will sign an immunity waiver.

"I have also written to Gov. Stratton, assuring him that to the full extent of my resources I will make restitution and attempt to hold the state of Illinois from any loss because of my actions."

Meanwhile, Atty. Gen. Latham Castle told United Press that at Hodge's meeting with Stratton Monday when he offered his resignation, Hodge said he wanted to "make a clean breast of everything."

"All Choked Up"

Castle said Hodge also said he wanted to try to make restitution for as much of the money as possible. The attorney general said Hodge mentioned no specific figure, but said "it will take some time" to repay the money.

Castle said Hodge was "all choked up" at the meeting, and that he and the governor had already discussed Hodge's resignation before he (Castle) arrived at the governor's mansion for the meeting.

Hodge was quoted by Castle as saying: "I don't know why I did it."

Castle said Hodge reported he and his attorney were anxious to give "their fullest cooperation."

Meanwhile, an aide to Stratton said that if an interim successor to Hodge is named today, the announcement will come late this afternoon.

The aide confirmed that C. S. Young, resigned president of the Chicago Federal Reserve Bank, is one "of several" persons who were under consideration for the appointment.

Bows Out of Election Race

Paschen Urges Special Session

CHICAGO (AP) — Democratic gubernatorial candidate Herbert C. Paschen Monday urged Gov. William G. Stratton to call a special session of the Legislature to investigate all state departments.

Paschen issued his statement shortly after Stratton announced the resignation of Orville E. Hodge as state auditor and as a Republican candidate for re-election.

The Democrat said he hoped Stratton would choose as Hodge's successor "a person in whom the public may have absolute confidence." He added that Hodge's resignation "does not alleviate the situation" and that the investigation of the auditor's office should not end now because Hodge has resigned.

Lesson Written In Flame

Editorial — BY BRUCE BLOSSAT
The terrible shock of the two-plane crash in the Grand Canyon
may at last bring long needed action toward modernizing this country's badly outdated system of air traffic control.

Ironically the Arizona tragedy,
which many experts are assuming at this stage resulted from a collision between the TWA and United Airlines, occurred over territory that is not considered crowded air space.

Aviation experts familiar with today's intolerable flying conditions have almost literally been holding their breath in the expectation that such an accident would happen. But they would have predicted its occurrence over one of our many overloaded airports
or along one of the more congested air routes.

That it took place in an area where flights are not too numerous does not, however, reduce its force as evidence that its regulations no longer fit conditions of air travel.

It is apparent, too, that both ground and air equipment are inadequate for the needs of high speed flying.

Take the latter first. An official of the Airline Pilots Association declares that it is well known that the plane's altimeter, the instrument which measures altitude, can be off as much as 300 to 400 feet. He said he had heard pilots scream over their radios:
"He's at my altitude!" This when they were supposed to be flying a safe distance apart.

Radar has been installed on many of the nation's commercial aircraft, though not all. But here again, it is pointed out that such radar is used solely for "weather avoidance," scanning the area up to 150 miles ahead of a plane. It is employed mostly on short-haul flights where pilots must fly through whatever weather exists.

There are no collision avoidance indicators. And no one has yet produced any radar equipment which would enable a pilot to know whether a plane was directly above or below or just behind him.

Furthermore, the physical and working conditions within the plane's cockpit do not favor good visual observation along a route.
Instruments pack a high panel in front of the pilot, and cover the ceiling. Window space is so relatively small that no vision can be had up or down and not too much to the side. In practice, pilots are so busy studying charts, making radio contact and reading instruments that they seldom look out at all.

As for traffic control rules, they were designed for the age of that trustworthy old icewagon, the DC-3. They provide for the spacing of aircraft along a given route,
for the altitude differentials supposed to keep them apart, for their movement in landing and take-off or holding patterns over airports.

The famous reports which indicate an average of four near-misses a day on the nation's airways are shattering proof that these regulations don't suit the age of Super Constellations, DC-6's and DC-7's.

Nor are there sufficient or fully adequate electronic devices at both ground stations and airports to manage the traffic as it should be handled.

The black splashes of death
scarring the Grand Canyon's bar-ren sides ought to be burned into the minds of everyone in America
having anything to do with aviation. And that includes Congress, which should move without delay
to study and act to give this country a traffic control system as modern as its planes.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

DREW PEARSON Says:
The Hasn't Been Consulted Re
Steel Strike; White House
Aides Are Worried Over Economic Chain Reaction; Nixon
Did Good Job of Patching Up
Peace With Chiang.

WASHINGTON. — Government
policy on the creeping paralysis
of the steel strike has puzzled labor and industry leaders. Two conflicting views have come from White House and cabinet.

Eisenhower aides have told newsmen that the administration did not want a strike, that they were worried over what a prolonged strike would do to the economy; that they feared a chain economic reaction might throw hundreds of thousands out of work.

Yet simultaneously, Secretary of Labor Mitchell, Ike's No. 1 labor adviser, has not yet consulted with the President, as of this writing. White Sox aides further say they have not wanted to talk to General Eisenhower about the strike for fear it might upset him.

How far the administration has gone to keep hands off the strike is illustrated by the following:
1. Secretary Mitchell made a public statement that the government would not intervene. Mitchell, a smart and broad-gauged cabinet member, must have known this was arrogant meddling with the Taft-Hartley Act, which specifically states that he has nothing to do with federal mediation. The Federal Mediation Service was given complete and separate power to act, yet Mitchell's statement amounted to formal notice to the steel companies that they could go the limit without interference from the government. This weakened the hand of labor.

2. The Federal Mediation Service did not make a single, solitary move to prevent the strike, though fully empowered to do so. Associate Director Clyde Mills made a public statement that the disagreement was susceptible to settlement, that it was a "matter of getting in and giving it a push."
But no push was made. After the strike was finally called it took 11
days for the Federal Mediation Service to arrange a meeting of the two sides.

3. Most potent economic force in the administration, astute Secretary of the Treasury George Humphrey, did not intervene.
Humphrey owns a steel company,
National Steel; also the biggest coal company in the world, Pittsburgh Consolidated; also a fleet of boats on the Great Lakes which carry iron ore to the steel mills.
He has not hesitated to step in where economic matters were concerned. (It was Humphrey who put across the St. Lawrence Seaway after 20 years of delay, thereby expediting ore shipments from his Labrador iron fields.) But in the steel strike he did not move.

Labor and industry conclude,
therefore, that the administration, though unhappy about a strike, did not want to incur industry criticism by intervening.

NIXON AND CHIANG

Inside reason why the State Department suddenly ordered Vice President Nixon to stop off at Formosa to see Chiang Kai-Shek was a warning that Chiang was planning some suicide raids
against the China coast
which would upset the uneasy truce in the Far East and might threaten war right on the verge of the Eisenhower re-election campaign.

Nixon did a good job of softsoaping the Generalissimo and getting him to promise to behave.

The bargain he made was that the U. S. A. would steadfastly oppose Red China's admission to the U. N. Chiang had become aroused over recent confidential notes
leaking out of the White House showing that Eisenhower favored recognition of Red China.

While calm has been restored
on Formosa, almost anything can happen there if Chiang once again gets the idea his chief ally is deserting him.

HANDSOME ADMIRAL STRAUSS

Atomic Energy Boss Admiral
Lewis Strauss is not an unhandsome man. Nevertheless, he likes to look as tall as anyone else.

As the admiral was about to be photographed the other day with Deputy Undersecretary of State
Robert Murphy and Belgium Ambassador Baron Sclercruys, an aide hurriedly lugged in a huge book, dropped it at Strauss's feet.
The atomic energy chief solemnly mounted the makeshift pedestal and stood shoulder-to-shoulder with the other dignitaries while the flashbulbs popped.

UNDIPLOMATIC DIPLOMAT

Worst disgrace that can befall
a diplomat is to be ousted from a country. Yet Syrian Ambassador Farid Zeineddine is deliberately trying to get kicked out of the United States.

He has been attacking the loyalty of American Jews in speeches around the country, though he knows this is a violation of diplomatic rules. His friends on embassy row say he hopes to provoke the American authorities into ordering him to leave.

Ambassador Zeineddine has been identified with the pro-Soviet faction in his country ever since he served as Syrian minister to Moscow in 1945-47. By forcing the United States to oust him for attacking the Jews, he would embarrass the U. S. A. with Syria's anti-Jewish populace.

This not only would hurt the United States in Arab world, but it also would boost the ambassador's political prestige at home.
He would come home a martyr
for speaking out against the Jews
in defiance of the American government.

American Jewish leaders have protested to the State Department against Zeineddine's inflamatory speeches, but Secretary of State Dulles is in a box as to what to do.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

It was Sen. Lyndon Johnson of Texas who left the closed hearing with Gen. Nate Twining and leaked to the press, quoting Twining, on Russian drunkenness. Twining feels this put him in a very awkward position when it comes to gathering more information from Russia. Gov. Averell Harriman is irked at his old friend Adlai Stevenson for writing personal notes to New York convention delegates already pledged to Harriman, trying to woo them away from the Republicans. The Republicans have picked Roy James, an ex-Senate labor committee clerk, to woo labor votes. He has set up Republican labor committees in 20 strong labor-union states.

One Killed, 70 Hurt in Illinois Coal Mines in June

SPRINGFIELD — One man was killed and 70 were injured in Illinois coal mine accidents during June, the State Mines and Minerals Department reported today.

Coal production in June totaled 3,459,596 tons, a drop from the 3,686,812 tons produced in May but well above the 2,973,718 tons hoisted in June 1955.

The June production was reported by 97 shipping mines in 34 counties, 50 of them strip mines and 47 of them shaft mines.

The fatal accident occurred in a rock fall June 13 in a Williamson County mine near Johnston City.

The June casualty figures brought the totals for the first six months of this year to 12 dead and 526 injured.

Thinking It Over

By Robert L. Dieffenbacher, D.D.
Written for NEA Service

People do not like to be pushed around. They prefer making their own decisions. Everyone is different and each has certain likes and dislikes. Our choices in a land of freedom vary in small degrees
and in numerous areas of interest.

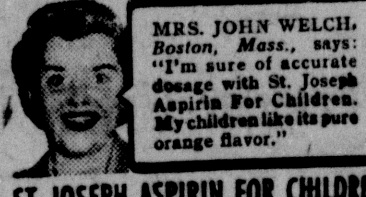

We, the people, cast our votes
for the items which will be manufactured and for the products which will be eliminated from the market place. We vote for economic conditions, political choices,
social change, intellectual interests, cultural changes, artistic endeavors and religious development.

All of this freedom is possible
where people accept the spiritual principle of brotherhood and love.
These principles cannot be endured in a land where people give up their religious faith in God and man. Wherever folk cease to worship a being higher than man, they turn to more human leadership.

Human leadership without God finds itself in trouble because there is always someone jealous of the incumbent. The only way one can retain dictatorial power is to eliminate competition and to rule by force. Under a rule of force, people are robbed of freedom and have to be pushed around. Only folk who are afraid will take this kind of treatment.

The American people are not afraid of their leaders, but they are free as spiritual entities. We can hold this position as long as we pray and worship God as our Lord and guide. Let us grow in worship and in faith.

(Foster Studio Photo)
Mr. and Mrs. John Henry Billman

In an impressive candlelight ceremony which took place Tuesday, July 3, at the Big Ridge Baptist church Miss Carolyn Sue Endsley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Endsley, became the bride of John Henry Billman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Billman of Eldorado.

Rev. Clayton Humphrey performed the double ring service at seven thirty o'clock in the evening.

The bride wore a waltz length gown of white nylon lace over satin designed with long sleeves which were pointed over the hand and closed with tiny pearls. Delicate lace flowers were appliqued with pearls on the rounded neckline. She wore a fingertip veil of illusion edged with nylon lace and carried a white orchid on a white ribbon with long streamers of white satin.

Mrs. Allen King, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, wearing a gown of cream taffeta with an overskirt of lace and net, fashioned with short sleeves which were pointed at the shoulder.

Bridesmaid was Miss Dixie Endsley, cousin of the bride, who chose a frock of pale blue taffeta with an overskirt of pale blue net. The matron of honor and bridesmaid both carried bouquets of flowers.

Ralph Billman, brother of the bridegroom, was best man, and Jimmy Billman, also a brother of the groom, was a groomsman. Ushers were Bill Endsley Jr., brother of the bride, and John Endsley Jr., cousin of the bride.

Miss Ann Endsley sang "Always" and "I Love You Truly" during the ceremony.

Howlett Proposes Changes in Auditor's Office

CHICAGO (UP) — Michael J. Howlett, Democratic candidate for state auditor, said today he would seek to "reform" the auditor's office.

Howlett set forth a program calling for three major legislative changes.

The first would require an annual audit of the auditor's office by independent certified public accountants.

The second would require that all vouchers authorizing expenditures for administration of the auditor's office be submitted first to the state director of finance.

The third would increase the auditor's bond from the present $50,000 to $250,000.

LIL ABNER

XXXIV

Jean sagged exhaustedly onto the sloping bench and he lowered himself beside her. He lifted her head from the hard stone and laid it gently onto his chest. She said softly, "You're wondering about Hyman, naturally. Not too much is known about him before he came to town. In Cashtown a man's past is inviolate."

"He rode West with poor lungs and soon found himself broke. A fiddle player at the rare dances. He worked at the Alhambra when my father owned it. One day my mother heard his violin on the street and made father bring him home."

"That was the beginning of his Sunday visits. All I'm really sure of about Hyman is that he's known the luxuries of life—a sensitive man with a musician's soul. At the ranch he'd play his violin for hours. Mother and Dad loved his music. Dad set him up in the furniture shop. I realize he has never forgotten Vogel."

Frank laid his back against the still-warm rock and found his thoughts running brink-full. The grotesque figure of the violinist leaning over his bow, the eerie light from the sky, the steady scuffling sound of the horses now satisfied with their drinking, all this fastened itself into an uncomprehensible pattern. His glance lay on Jean and he thought her asleep. He held himself motionless, listening to the quiet sound of her breathing, knowing a contented joy in the nearness. The larger part of an hour sped by.

She surprised him by sitting erect. "I wonder if we're mistaken? Could it be Norring won't try to stop us?"

Frank understood she was trying to bring herself to believe this in order to strengthen her courage. He made no answer and she went on, "Do you think he'd take a chance on an all-out attack? He has so much to lose. Would Cashtown stand for a Norring that wicked?"

Neither of them realized Hyman was hunkered down behind them. His voice was strained, the hatred barely contained. "Dead men carry no stories back to Cashtown. Make no mistake about Norring. He'll have your Rafter C—and when he rides back to the bank the story will be he tried to save you from your brother, but he was too late. I can hear his smooth lies as clearly as though he were here."

Coming from the musician's conviction had a shocking impact. Somewhere in his past this man had come into contact with brutality, with life in its meanest facets.

Alex came scampering down the slant. "There are horses on the malpais. Far behind us, Segundo. Tiny speaks."

Frank leaped up, his leg muscles sluggish from the hour's rest. He had not known he was so tired. On top of the brim he studied the moving specks against the carbon background, measuring their distance, knowing this was what he had looked for, and sensing relief. "Who will it be, Emmett or Steve? They're mad—both of them must have the Rafter!" Jean's voice fell away in a sob.

He led her back to the depression. "All right," he called his crew. "Everybody up! Switch saddles on the horses—they're the one break we have!"

He caught up a long-legged, deep-chested roan and transferred his own gear. When he mentioned their break in owning fresh horses he had pointed out the truth. It was a break. But his mind was made up. He wasn't going to run much further.

It was Norring's crew coming up on them. If they waited here at The Pits they would have the Circle N at a serious disadvantage. On the other hand, Frank knew thirsty men and animals fought desperately, and Norring's horses would break through their defense and stampede Jean's string. There must be a better place to fight, a place where the string would be safe.

Then he hit the saddle. His voice cracked in the utter stillness. "We'll meet them on Gobbler's Knob!"

Frank drew his horse in beside a slash in the Knob's timbered slope. He called hastily to Jean. "Looks like a box canyon. Is it sealed at the far end?"

She roused herself tiredly in her saddle, staring with eyes that came slowly into focus. Then her glance crept around searching Alex. She found him pulling a dusty bay to a stand. "I don't know if it's a box, Frank."

"We'll find out," Alex said. "All right, make sure," Frank ordered.

He sat in his saddle slackly watching the kid prow around the rubble in the canyon's mouth, knowing on this trek Alex was speedily repaying every favor Vogel Cash had ever done him. Hyman, too, quickly read the importance of a tight corral. He had ridden up behind Alex and dropped a rope around the end of a rotting windfall. The big remount he had chosen began to strain on the rope.

"Wait!" Frank yelled, spurring on. But Hyman put steel to his horse, dragging the windfall to one side.

Frank wheeled his animal, walking him back behind the string. Jean and Swenson were beside him when he worked the loose horses in through the opening Hyman had made. When they were inside the box canyon Frank called Swenson. "Run your ropes across the throat of that cut. Patch up with what solid poles you can find and we'll have a good holding pen." Texas Eastern helps make stronger-than-steel Nygen tires

Texas Eastern transports natural gas via pipeline from the Southwest for use in General Tire & Rubber Company's Akron, Ohio, plant to make Nygen. General Tire research reveals that pound for pound, Nygen is stronger than steel. To produce Nygen, nylon cord is treated with a special latex compound, and then conveyed to a giant natural gas-fired curing oven where a secret formula gives Nygen its amazing strength. Why did the General Tire people choose natural gas as the fuel for this vital curing operation? Because natural gas burns cleanly... is economical... and, perhaps most important—the temperature can be critically controlled.

Approve Treating Water in Reservoirs

votes," Melton said. The council has five members.

"We're not satisfied with the tabling of actions of the board and of hirings to water department positions without even talking to the board about it," he continued.

"I admit," he said, "we have had water and little money in the treasury and our water department employees are asking for a raise," he stated. "We have these problems and we're asking for authority to cope with them if we're going to have the responsibility."

He then asked the water board members (five of the seven were present) if they wanted authority with their responsibilities or if they wanted to go along as in the past.

P. J. Herron, board member, said he didn't know whose fault it is—the council or the board—for the present situation, but that it was a case of failing to act.

Other Points Aired

Member Carl Tuttle said he was blaming the water board as much as anybody, that Amos Doom had to run to everybody before he could act, after which Melton added that Doom as superintendent should not have to contact everybody on the board and council before acting.

Then Herron said "that we pay Amos to look after things and he should do the things needed to be done because he has the authority himself."

A number of other points were aired. They included when to use the Congo pump which is 1,100 feet up Middle Fork from the pumping station at a spot where it will not get bad water from Bankston creek; and the question of a raise for water employees.

Mayor Gibbons and Commissioner Don Williams spoke about the council's part in the situation.

Gibbons, who said that it had been suggested that the council repeal the ordinance setting up the city's water system and procedure but who did not elaborate on the reason why, told of his own eight years on the water board, when there was no water superintendent hired.

Inspected Reservoirs

He told of going to the storage reservoirs last Tuesday with Commissioner Charlie Hine and Chief of Police Ross Lane to inspect the water and saw lots of floating vegetation or debris.

"I pulled out a handful of grass and it had the same odor that the water has coming from the faucets," the mayor said, and continued:

"I believe the big trouble is from decayed vegetation. My idea all the time has been to keep the reservoirs full of water—the deeper the pool the less trouble you'll have."

Speaking of the board's authority, Gibbons said "the board doesn't have any power until its actions are cleared by the council, that the ordinance is set up for the board to meet on a Monday night before the council meets the following day so that the council can go over its actions.

Explains Council Action

He said he could remember very few occasions when the council has rejected the board's actions, but speaking of recent actions when the council has tabled water board minutes granting the water department employees a 10 per cent pay raise, he said:

"The board is not on the paying end; we must handle that part. We're in a deplorable and embarrassing position. Everybody is disturbed and they have a right to be. We're trying to keep up with the expenses and pay off $200,000 in bonds and the water is worse than last year."

He said one of the things that caused tabling of the minutes of the board two weeks ago, when the salary raise was approved for the second time, was a reference to raising of the water rates.

Melton admitted that the minutes left this impression, but that this was not the case. He said that several years ago when the Lake Harrisburg project was in its infancy a flat 50-cent increase per user was authorized and put into effect.

This, he said, was based on 3-200 users, was to give the water department $1,600 additional each month to take care of expenses. A new rate structure would be needed, Melton said he and others had been informed, and it was developed.

Large Users Pay Less

"The Blue Lake project had depleted the treasury, taking about $35,000," Melton said, "and we sat around waiting for the additional $1,600 a month to show up. But it didn't."

He said about five months ago it was decided to go into the rate structure and it developed that although each user was paying an added 50 cents, the larger users were paying a smaller bill because of the way the rate structure was set up.

Willard Wiley, board member, said he had figured out that a big user, whose bill had been $100, was paying about $80, plus 50 cents, under the structure set up after the 50 cents had been added.

The reference to a rate increase in the minutes two weeks ago, Melton explained, was a proposal that the rate structure should be revised so that the city will actually get 50 cents more from each user instead of an average 18-cent decrease per user, as he had been told was now the case.

Speaking of the wage negotiations with water employees, Commissioner Williams said he had been criticized greatly because the hike had not been granted, but stated "you'll find it's strictly a business proposition."

"As soon as the water board provides us with the money to take care of the increase, we'll consider it," he said. "I'm in charge of writing checks and I want them to clear. The water department now is spending more than it is taking in. I have nothing personal against anybody, it's not good business to spend more than you're taking in."

Gov't Official Predicts 42,000 Auto Fatalities

WASHINGTON — An administration official predicted today that 42,000 Americans will die in auto accidents this year.

He promised the government will do what it can to halt the massacre.

Commerce Undersecretary Louis S. Rothschild made the statement in testimony before a House commerce subcommittee which is investigating auto safety.

Rothschild said that in April 2,960 persons were killed in auto accidents — a record for that month. He said it brought to 11,550 the number killed in the first four months this year.

April was the 14th consecutive month in which traffic deaths were higher than for the corresponding month of the year before, he said. "At the current rate the 1956 highway traffic death toll will reach 42,000."

Cardinals Purchase

Centerfielder from Omaha

ST. LOUIS — Charley Peete of Omaha, left-handed centerfielder who leads the American Association in batting with a .349 average, has been purchased by the St. Louis Cardinals and is expected to play tonight. In exchange, the Cardinals sent to their Omaha farm team utility man Chuck Harmon, who was hitless in 19 at-bats.

Detroit Tigers Sold; Briggs Holds a Top Post

DETROIT — The 11-man group headed by broadcasters Fred Knorr and John Fetzner today was hailed as the winning bidder for the Detroit Tigers, but the real winner may have been "Spike" Briggs.

After Walter O. "Spike" Briggs Jr. announced the Tiger board of directors had accepted the Knorr-Fetzner proposal of a record 5 1-2 million, Knorr announced Briggs would be the executive vice president of the club.

This was a triumph for the son of the late Tiger owner Walter O. Briggs Sr., and Spike, who has been determined to stay with the club and continue his father's policies, admitted it.

Asked if he thought the Briggs' estate trustees would uphold the selection of the Knorr-Fetzner group's bid, Briggs said, "I won this one, let's wait and see."

The Knorr-Fetzner winning bid calls for payment of $4.6 million cash, $1 million of this to be paid by Aug. 1, and the remaining $3.6 million to be paid off in at least five years at four per cent interest.

Knorr had also made a bid of $5 million cash for the club, but this was topped by three other cash bids. Groups which offered more immediate cash were headed by Bill Veeck, $5,250,000; Jack Kent Cooke, Toronto, $5,180,000; and Hollywood producer Robert Goldstein, $5,050,000.

None of the other three groups had plans for putting Spike Briggs in a top policy making position. Knorr, an old friend of Briggs, said Spike would be in such a position if he was the winner bidder.

THAT'S NO MIRAGE

Braves Beat Pirates for Seventh Win in Row; Haddix Blanks St. Louis Cards, 2-0

By United Press
Fred Haney's "7-11" winning streaks as the new manager of the Milwaukee Braves were making them a hot pennant bet today and giving him revenge against the Pittsburgh Pirates, who fired him.

Haney quickly ran up a seven-game winning streak when his Braves came home to Milwaukee for a long stand against the eastern teams, knocking off the Dodgers four in a row and the Pirates three straight, including Monday's 2-1 triumph. That kept them two full games ahead of second place Cincinnati.

And when Haney inherited the job as Milwaukee manager, succeeding not so jolly Cholly Grimm, the Braves whizzed to a spectacular 11-game streak. In that one, the first two triumphs were over the Dodgers and the next three against Pittsburgh.

To most men, getting fired as manager of the Pirates would be like a parole from a prison sentence, but right now Haney seems to be making practically a federal case out of his revenge.

Monday, Haney's zany gained another fine pitching job from Bob Buhl, who walked nobody, struck out four and scattered seven hits for his 11th victory. Hank Aaron lined a center field homer for the victory margin against loser Ronnie Kline. Earlier, Frank Thomas homered to spoil Buhl's shutout.

The Phillies, capitalizing on a western tour, won their sixth game in the last seven at St. Louis, defeating the Cardinals 2-0 on the seven-hit pitching of lefty Harvey Haddix. It was the third time Haddix had beaten the Cardinals since General Manager Frank Lane traded him away to Philadelphia. Haddix now has a 7-3 mark with the Phils and is 8-3 for the season. He struck out eight Cards and walked but one. Doubles by Richie Ashburn and Marv Blaylock drove in the two lone runs.

At Cincinnati, Gus Bell, Ed Bailey and Frank Robinson hit homers to give the Redlegs an easy 10-4 decision over the Giants, who lost their seventh game in a row. Cincy now has 121 homers for 81 games and has exactly 100 to go before equalling the all-time major league record of 221 set by the 1947 Giants. Art Fowler went all the way for his sixth victory. Loser Johnny Antonelli was tagged with his eighth defeat.

The Dodgers gained an abbreviated 4-1 decision over the Cubs at Chicago in a six-inning game called because of rain. Gil Hodges hit a three-run homer in the first inning to set up an easy ninth victory for Roger Craig, who came up to Brooklyn as a raw rookie just a year ago Monday. Craig, in his anniversary showing as a tested veteran, yielded only two hits.

Bob Lemon pitched five-hit ball for his 11th victory as Cleveland topped Boston, 7-3 in the only American League contest. The Indians made 17 hits every starter getting at least one and Hal Naragon and Jim Busby getting three each. Busby and Jack Jensen of the losers hit homers.

The Chicago at New York American League game was rained out and the other teams were not scheduled.

U. S. Accuses Soviets of Holding American Fliers

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States has accused Russia of illegally holding some American fliers who have disappeared during cold war air skirmishes in recent years.

A note delivered in Moscow Monday demanded immediately information about them and any other U. S. military personnel who may have been detained in the Soviet Union since Jan. 1, 1949.

While the United States was making its protest, it also received one. Polish Ambassador Romuald Spasowski lodged with the State Department an oral complaint that American jet planes violated Polish territory during the past month. The Polish protest echoed similar charges filed by Russia last week claiming that American military planes recently penetrated as deep as 200 miles into Soviet territory. Spasowski claimed that some

Mrs. Earl Smith, 42, Former Resident, Dies at Hinsdale

Sallie Hughes Smith, 42, wife of Earl Smith, formerly of Harrisburg, died at her home in Hinsdale, Ill., Sunday at 6 p. m. following a long illness.

She was the daughter of the late Bernard Hughes and a sister of Bernard Hughes of Harrisburg. Funeral services were held today at 3 p. m. at the Methodist church in Hinsdale where she was a member.

She was the cousin of Mrs. Katie Kent and of Henry and Willie Garnett of Harrisburg.

of the American planes which flew over Poland were the same ones mentioned in the Russian protest. Reports that some American airmen are in Soviet hands have been drifting into the State Department for years. Monday's U. S. note said the reports "have now become so persistent and detailed, and so credible" that the demand for information was being made.

Veil of Secrecy Around Meeting of Steel Executives

NEW YORK (AP)—A veil of secrecy appears to have been clamped around a scheduled meeting of top steel industry executives here today.

Industry spokesmen admit that a meeting is planned but they disclaim any knowledge about the time and place.

It was understood the chairman or presidents of 12 major steel companies are in New York to meet with the industry's four-man negotiating team.

John A. Stephens, chief industry negotiator, said in Pittsburgh Monday the industry's top executives would consider "the whole picture" in the contract dispute which has idled 650,000 steelworkers for 17 days.

Negotiations were to resume in Pittsburgh Wednesday, Stevens said.

Democratic Committee Demands Ike's Doctors Submit to News Conference

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Democratic National Committee has demanded that President Eisenhower's doctors submit to news conference questioning again on the status of the President's health.

The committee, in its official publication, The Democratic Digest, accused the White House Monday of conducting a politically motivated "snow job" to gloss over the President's condition.

The committee said so many conflicting opinions prevail among physicians about ileitis, the President's recent ailment, that there is need for "amplification and clarification" on Mr. Eisenhower's case. It said the President's doctors should submit to another news conference because questions have arisen about the optimistic report they gave on Mr. Eisenhower's condition soon after his operation.

Other political developments: At a pre-convention caucus Monday night, New York Gov. Averell Harriman and Sen. Estes Kefauver, rivals for the Democratic presidential nomination, made personal pleas to New Jersey's unpledged delegates for their support at the party's national convention. Adlai E. Stevenson was represented at the meeting by his campaign manager, James D. Finnegan.

Harriman cited his governmental experience on national and state levels, in domestic and foreign fields as the main argument for his candidacy.

Kefauver said his campaign was based primarily on a belief "in the little people of this world and nation."

Finnegan stressed Stevenson's "vote - getting ability" and his "wide experience" in government.

Hodge Says He Will Make Full Restitution

the new auditor could be appointed and qualified for office today. Otherwise, he said, the announcement will come Wednesday.

The grand jury excused a Chicago policeman, William D. Lydon, from testifying today and subpoenaed him for July 23. Lydon was proprietor of a drapery firm which received large contracts from Hodge's office.

Outraged Lydon said he could not give the grand jury worthwhile information until he brought with him his firm's records.

The Hodge resignation was announced at a news conference by Stratton, who said Hodge also was bowing out as the Republican candidate for re-election and as an Illinois delegate to the Republican national convention in San Francisco.

Stratton immediately accepted Hodge's resignation as auditor, and said he would call a meeting of the state electoral board of which he is president to act on Hodge's withdrawal as a candidate for re-election.

Stratton said he would take the "responsibility of recommending a new candidate" for auditor to the Republican State Central Committee, which has the power under law to name a successor to Hodge on the ballot.

It will take a "day or two," Stratton said, to qualify Hodge's replacement as auditor because the appointee must be named and bonded before taking office. The governor added that Hodge, a dapper downstate businessman, promised to give his full cooperation in aiding the new auditor assume his duties.

Stratton stressed, however, that the new auditor and the new GOP candidate for the post definitely will not be the same man. The governor implied that the new auditor will be too busy to campaign for election over the Democratic candidate for auditor, Michael J. Howlett.

Three Servicemen Held for Robbery

CLINTON, Ind. (AP)—Three servicemen were held for armed robbery at Newport in connection with a tavern holdup early today.
Pfc. James D. Lennox, 21, Terre Haute, Pfc. Kennard Briggett, 21, Sumner, Ill., and Pfc. Roy Edward Daves, 20, Logan, W. Va., were caught by city police at a road block near Jules Tavern, the scene of the crime, a few minutes after the robbery.

Police said Briggett took $78.35 at gunpoint from three patrons and the bartender while Lennox and Daves waited in a car. They said Briggett and Lennox were armed when arrested.

Stevenson Calls For Full Probe Of Stratton Rule

CHICAGO (AP)—Adlai Stevenson said today that in view of the Hodge scandal there should be a "top to bottom" investigation of the administration of Republican Gov. William G. Stratton.

Stevenson said it also "would be interesting to know" where resigned State Auditor Orville Hodge got the money to sponsor broadcasts urging a heavy vote for President Eisenhower in last spring's Illinois primary.

Stevenson, former Illinois governor who seeks the Democratic presidential nomination, said:

"I trust that the latest reported developments in the shocking Hodge case, which tend to put all the blame on one man, will not obscure the need for a top-to-bottom investigation of the Stratton administration."

Stratton succeeded Stevenson as governor in 1952.

Stevenson said it is "hard to believe that no more than one man is involved" in the scandal involving Hodge's handling of state funds.

"A full scale investigation of the Stratton administration would seem to be called for in order to restore the people's confidence," Stevenson said.

"It would also be interesting to know the source of the funds with which Mr. Hodge sponsored statewide broadcasts urging a heavy vote for President Eisenhower in the primary this spring, and for which President Eisenhower publicly expressed his gratitude."

Defense Wins Right To Inspect Poll Of Marine Veterans

PARRIS ISLAND, S. C. (AP)—Marine Sgt. Matthew C. McKeon's defense today won the right to inspect results of a poll of Leatherneck veterans as to whether boot training practices are too rough.

The development raised the possibility that Gen. Randolph Pate, Marine Corps commandant, might be called to testify in the court-martial trial of McKeon, charged with manslaughter and cruelty in the April 8 "death march" of six new Marines.

But in another significant ruling preparatory to the actual trial of McKeon, a defense motion was denied to strike out two charges that he was drinking on duty the day of the tragedy.

The defense, contending the drinking charges were trivial, then moved to have stricken from the indictment Count IV alleging that McKeon was drinking in the presence of a recruit while on duty. That petition was denied, too, although the defense argued there is no order making it unlawful to drink under those conditions.

Ike Says Civil Defense Plans Must Be Revised

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower said today that plans for civil defense must be "realistically revised" to meet the threat of the hydrogen bomb and guided missiles.

Mr. Eisenhower conferred during the morning with Civil Defense Administrator Val Peterson. He gave Peterson a lengthy letter outlining the White House position on modernizing the civil defense program.

"Our whole civil defense effort needs both strengthening and modernizing," Mr. Eisenhower said. "This need arises not from any increase in international tensions but, rather, from the recent spectacular developments in weapons and methods of delivery."

Mr. Eisenhower said that recent progress in civil defense activities was encouraging but that the federal civil defense law antedates the hydrogen bomb and "must be realistically revised."

He said that in his State of the Union message to Congress next January he will recommend amendments to remedy the shortcomings in the present law.

Mr. Eisenhower will participate in the civil defense test—Operation Alert 1956 July 20-26.

To Review Plan for Construction of Illinois Hospitals

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—The Illinois Hospital Advisory Council will meet here Aug. 1 to review the annual state survey and plan for construction of hospital facilities in Illinois.

State Health Director Dr. Roland R. Cross said the meeting will be followed by a public hearing at which interested persons and organizations will be invited to submit suggestions for hospital construction and improvements.

The Health Department prepares an annual survey of hospitals and related facilities as an inventory of existing facilities and to establish plans for new hospitals which will qualify for federal aid funds.

The 18-member council, appointed by the governor, reviews the survey plans before they are submitted to the U. S. Public Health Service. Cross said an estimated $3,863,000 in federal money will be available for the 1956-57 fiscal year.

Cross said six types of hospital construction will have top priority under the current survey: General hospitals, psychiatric additions to general hospitals, nurses training schools, chronic disease facilities, diagnostic and treatment centers, and nursing homes.

McLeansboro is listed among the top priority areas for general hospitals; Benton, Mount Vernon and Centralia for chronic disease hospitals.

Dedicate Submarine Research Laboratory

GROTON, Conn. (AP)—A million dollar submarine research laboratory was dedicated today with a prediction that nuclear-powered underwater craft will play an increasingly important role in the nation's defense.

John Jay Hopkins, president of General Dynamics Corp. which built the lab, said "the strategic importance of the submarine will be expanded through research and development to such additional capabilities as that of a missile platform, a radar picket station, an anti-submarine weapon and an underwater transport or freighter."
